

Abstract of the disclosureDigital random generator based on an arithmetic compressor

The proposed device enables the construction of a perfect random generator by combining any physical source, concerning which no assumptions of quality are made, with an extractor. The extractor is constituted by an arithmetic encoder and an output linear function enabling the residual output bias to be smoothened.